Dear Hiring Manager,

I am one of the advertisers this role exists to serve. As Brand & Marketing Manager at DoFreeze in Dubai I buy and optimise retail media on talabat, Noon and Careem, and I have spent the past year on the question at the centre of this remit: how much of this revenue would have happened anyway? I am applying because that question is the work I enjoy most, and because the partner's-eye view is worth something to a regional insights function.

Let me be clear about what I am not, so you can judge the fit properly. I have not done programmatic buying, have not built formal attribution or predictive models as a discipline, and have not worked the platform side of retail media — revenue leakage, inventory pacing and monetisation gaps are problems I have read about, not owned. My degree is in Business Administration, not statistics. What I do have is four years of commercial analysis in multi-market FMCG and e-commerce, an advanced Excel and BI habit (Power BI, Tableau, Looker), and a measurement instinct that is the harder half of this job to teach.

In practice: rather than report a campaign's platform-side numbers, I ran SMASH on talabat against Befit as a control brand — same platform, same window — and measured the delta: +165% daily revenue against +4.7% for the control, roughly AED 32K incremental on AED 8.7K of spend. On Noon, 'New Year, New Me' delivered +4,176 incremental units, +31% over baseline; I do not lead with the +161% against October, because January is a natural peak for a fitness brand and that number flatters us. I also audited an agency's reporting and found reach estimated from follower counts rather than measured, the same creator counted twice across waves at 5× variance, and 'unique accounts' summed from estimates — then rebuilt the KPI definitions and moved spend to the cohorts genuinely outperforming. Before Dubai I owned the Flash Sales channel at Miravia (Alibaba) reporting to the CEO, pacing revenue against targets across 42 accounts, and began in category planning at Mondelez running sell-out analysis on Nielsen.

I am based in Dubai on a UAE residence visa, fluent in English and Spanish though not Arabic, and work across 50+ markets today. If the team wants a purely quantitative profile I am not the closest match, and I would rather say so. If there is room for someone who knows the advertiser's incentives from the inside and is stubborn about whether a number means what it claims, I would welcome the conversation. Thank you for your consideration.

Best regards,

Paula De Francisco Pérez
