Dear Hiring Manager,

Deliveroo describes its Account Managers as restaurant consultants — people who use data and industry know-how to help partners grow, not just support them. That is exactly the job I did at Glovo, where I managed a portfolio of strategic restaurant chains on a food-delivery platform, and it is the work I love most. As a commercial marketer already based in Dubai who integrates brands into Deliveroo every week, I would be thrilled to bring that experience to your most important restaurant partners.

At Glovo I managed key accounts such as KFC, Taco Bell, La Tagliatella and Sushi Shop — using order and performance data to build bespoke activations and growth plans that lifted volume, GMV and profitability for both the partner and the platform. I then ran a 42-account portfolio at Alibaba's Miravia to +30% GMV QoQ, reporting the Flash Sales channel directly to the CEO and turning traffic, conversion and retention data into clear growth stories partners acted on. Today at DoFreeze I manage brand growth across Deliveroo, Noon, talabat and Careem and partner daily with Marketing and Operations to launch new projects — so I know the quick-commerce mechanics behind this role from the inside.

Two things set me apart. First, food-delivery and quick-commerce account management is genuinely my background — I don't need to learn the model, I have grown restaurant and brand portfolios on these platforms for years and I read the data fluently (sell-in/sell-out, ROI, conversion, profitability). Second, I am already in Dubai on a UAE residence visa, GCC-fluent and bilingual Spanish/English, so there is no relocation and no ramp-up. I am organised, genuinely energised by fast-moving environments, and I build the kind of partner relationships that last.

I would love to help Deliveroo's top restaurant partners grow — and grow Deliveroo with them. I am available to start immediately and would welcome the chance to talk through how I would approach the portfolio. Thank you for your consideration; I look forward to hearing from you.

Best regards,

Paula De Francisco Pérez
