Dear Hiring Manager,

Retention is where e-commerce revenue is quietly won or lost, so an agency that runs it as a full revenue channel — better email, SMS and flows, no extra ad spend — is exactly the kind of work I want to own. I'm applying for the Klaviyo Account Manager / Email Strategist role because it sits right at the intersection of my two strongest muscles: owning client relationships end to end, and driving e-commerce performance through campaigns, flows and relentless A/B testing.

Account management is the spine of my career. At Alibaba's Miravia I owned 42 key accounts as their main point of contact — building long-term relationships, sending weekly status and performance reports, and growing GMV +30% QoQ through tailored plans, pricing and targeted promotions. At Glovo I managed XL accounts end to end with daily communication and fast turnaround on every request. Keeping accounts retained, performing and happy — with clear reporting and quick, honest responses — is already how I work, so your 60-minute response and Monday-report cadence feels like home rather than a stretch.

On execution, I own a Shopify DTC store end to end — catalogue, CRO, promotions and email/EDM campaigns — and I plan campaign calendars, A/B-test creative and messaging, optimise on-site conversion, and read open, click and conversion data to decide what ships next. I'm also an AI-first operator: I've built generative-AI automation that plans campaigns, produces copy and content, and generates reporting, cutting ~40% of manual workload — the kind of speed a pod runs on. I'll be candid that my hands-on email work has run through Shopify and EDM rather than Klaviyo specifically, but I already understand flows, campaigns, pop-ups and pod-level reporting, I'm platform-agnostic, and I ramp on new tools fast — I'd expect to be productive in Klaviyo within days, not weeks.

I'd love to bring this mix of end-to-end account ownership, e-commerce retention execution and AI-driven speed to AA Sends and the brands you serve. I'm available immediately, comfortable working remotely across MENA hours, and I'm applying through the form as requested. Thank you for your consideration — I'd welcome the chance to show how I'd own and grow a pod of retention accounts.

Best regards,

Paula De Francisco Pérez
