Dear Hiring Manager,

A house of master perfumers competing at the level of Givaudan, IFF and Symrise is exactly where I want to build the next chapter of my commercial career — and the Account Manager Fine Fragrance role caught my eye because fine fragrance is where I already have my sharpest edge. At Alibaba's Miravia I led the Fragrances category as PIC, personally onboarding the official distributors of the leading Arabian & oud houses — Arabian Oud, Lattafa, Swiss Arabian and Ajmal — so I know this market, its brands and its buyers, and I bring a genuine passion for fragrance to it.

Key account management is the spine of my career, and it maps directly onto what this role asks. At Miravia I owned 42 key accounts and grew GMV +30% QoQ through tailored proposals, pricing strategy and targeted promotions, owning client relationships end-to-end and reporting channel performance against revenue and margin targets to the CEO. Today, as Brand & Marketing Manager at DoFreeze, I drive sales and develop distribution channels across 50+ markets — building distributor networks, developing commercial proposals, and owning sales forecasting and pipeline management — while leading the end-to-end project cycle on new-product launches from brief to in-market execution.

Two things set me apart. First, real fine-fragrance market fluency in the Middle East — the accounts, the Arabian & oud houses and the commercial dynamics — combined with a true passion for the category. Second, I am already based in Dubai and immediately available. I'll be candid that my fragrance work has been on the brand, retail and distribution side rather than selling fragrance creations from a creative house — but I already own the account management, sales, distribution-channel and forecasting craft this role runs on, I know the market and its clients, and I ramp fast. I hold a Business Administration degree and am fluent in English.

I would be excited to bring this blend of key account ownership, fine-fragrance market fluency and data-led sales discipline to dsm-firmenich's fine fragrance business in the Middle East. I am available to start immediately and would welcome the chance to discuss how I would approach growing and deepening your key fine fragrance accounts across the region. Thank you for your consideration — I look forward to hearing from you.

Best regards,

Paula De Francisco Pérez
