Dear Steven Grundy,

I'm writing about the E-commerce Merchandising Executive role you're recruiting for your client's growing international retail business. The brief reads like a description of my day-to-day: keeping assortment, content, pricing and promotions accurate, commercially presented and ready to trade across owned platforms and third-party marketplaces. As Brand & Marketing Manager at DoFreeze I own our Shopify store end-to-end and merchandise brands across Noon, Talabat, Careem and Deliveroo, so online merchandising and digital trading are exactly the craft I want to keep doing.

Mapping directly to the role: I run daily-to-weekly trading on our Shopify store — categorisation, product presentation and discoverability (search terms, taxonomy, filters, placement), product uploads and content (imagery, descriptions, attributes, pricing), promotional execution against trading calendars, and product-lifecycle housekeeping — lifting conversion (CRO) and average order value. Across Noon, Talabat, Careem and Deliveroo I've managed listings, content, promo mechanics and availability across owned and third-party channels. Earlier, at Alibaba's Miravia, I ran digital trading across 42 accounts — assortment, pricing and promotions — growing GMV +30% QoQ while analysing conversion, traffic and retention, and I built the weekly trading reports and data-led recommendations that fed commercial decisions. Strong Excel, attention to detail on product/pricing/promotional data, and a bachelor's degree with an e-commerce specialisation round out the essentials.

One honest note, in the spirit of a good hire: my recent titles are at Manager level, while this is an Executive role — but I'm genuinely drawn to the hands-on merchandising and trading work and happy to own it end-to-end; I'm not looking to sit above the detail, I like being in it. I'm based in Dubai and work across the GCC, so I'm well placed to support the KSA-facing digital channels, and my career began on the Inditex (Massimo Dutti) shop floor, where visual-merchandising and product-presentation standards are drilled in — a foundation I still bring to how I merchandise online.

I'd welcome the chance to show how I'd keep your client's assortment, content, pricing and promotions accurate and trading well across every digital channel. Thank you for considering my application, Steven — I'd be glad to walk through how I'd approach the first 90 days in the role.

Best regards,

Paula De Francisco Pérez
