Dear Hiring Manager,

Temu's growth runs on business developers who can go out, recruit merchant partners, and actually make them succeed on the platform — and that's a job I've done. At Alibaba's Miravia I recruited and onboarded 30+ new vendors and brands in two months and grew 42 merchant accounts +30% GMV QoQ; at Glovo I helped build the Retail vertical from zero, proactively bringing new brands onto the platform. Having come up inside a Chinese-owned marketplace (Alibaba), the platform-operations playbook Temu runs on is familiar terrain, and I'm now building vendor and brand partnerships in the UAE market from Dubai.

The responsibilities map directly onto my experience. I recruit and develop partnerships with merchandise partners and brands, and I help them establish and grow — guiding market positioning, product and assortment planning, brand marketing and operational strategy, exactly as I did for the merchants I onboarded at Miravia and the brands I took onto Glovo. I focus category selection to grow value, propose and run projects through resource integration and merchant guidance, and I steer it all with data: industry and competitive analysis, trend-spotting and project management through numbers in Excel and Power BI. I'm also comfortable under pressure and through peak periods — I owned Miravia's Flash Sales channel on tight deadlines and managed logistics through high-demand peaks at Glovo — and I've built an AI-powered system (Claude) that accelerates my industry analysis and reporting.

One honest note on the 'plus' you mention: I've been building UAE vendor and distributor relationships over the past year through my current role — a fast-growing local network rather than a decade-deep rolodex yet, but I know how to open and develop these relationships from scratch, which is what BD actually rewards. My category background is beauty, fragrances, fashion and FMCG, and Temu spans every category — but recruiting merchants, guiding their growth and reading a category through data is craft that travels, and I adapt fast. What I bring is a proven marketplace-BD track record, Chinese-platform familiarity, and the self-motivated, resourceful, move-fast attitude this role is built for.

I'd be excited to help Temu recruit and grow its merchant base and prove it in selection, partnerships and GMV — and I can share case studies (from onboarding 30+ vendors in two months to +30% GMV QoQ). I'm based in Dubai and ready to move fast. Thank you for your consideration — I look forward to hearing from you.

Best regards,

Paula De Francisco Pérez
