Dear Hiring Manager,

I am applying for the Brand Manager role for Better For You, Raffaello and Tablets in Dubai. The portfolio brings together the three things I have worked on: chocolate, better-for-you snacking, and seasonal moments in the Gulf. I would like to bring that experience to your regional team.

Today I run brand and marketing for DoFreeze, a UAE snacking group whose portfolio includes Befit, a sugar-free, fitness-led better-for-you brand. I have taken six products to market end to end, from brief and packaging to pricing and go-to-market, working with Sales, Supply Chain and Finance. I also built a seasonal calendar around Ramadan, Back to School, Fitness Month and New Year, measured on sell-out rather than reach: Befit x Noon "New Year, New Me" added 4,176 incremental units (+31% vs baseline), and a SMASH x talabat creator campaign lifted daily sales by 165% while a control brand grew 4.7%.

The rest of the brief is also familiar. I brief and manage four agencies on campaign assets and content, and negotiated their fees down by 30%. I track A&P spend against results and contribute promotional input to the monthly sell-in forecast. I lead and coach a team of two, a graphic designer and a social media executive, so developing an Assistant Brand Manager is part of how I already work. My grounding in chocolate comes from Mondelez, where I planned the category with Nielsen data, measured promotional effectiveness and supported the Milka Spread and Mini Suchard launches. Two years at Alibaba's Miravia marketplace, growing 42 brand accounts by +30% GMV QoQ, added the commercial discipline of reading the numbers every week.

I am based in Dubai and would welcome the chance to discuss how I would approach the Better For You, Raffaello and Tablets plans for the Gulf. Thank you for your consideration.

Best regards,

Paula De Francisco Pérez
