13 October 2026

Dear Qureos team,

Your posting says campaigns launched is not a result, so I will start with a test. This year we ran a purchase-to-enter cashback giveaway with talabat for SMASH, a new snack brand at DoFreeze in Dubai. Daily sales rose 165% during the campaign. Befit, our other brand on the same platform in the same weeks, without the campaign, moved 4.7%. That gap, not the reach, is what I reported, and it is the kind of work I want to do as your Senior Growth Marketer.

Most of what I have built started from nothing. I took our influencer channel from zero to 103 creator activations at AED 81 per content piece, then audited the agency's own report and found reach that had been estimated rather than measured, and micro-creators performing 10 to 40 times the campaign average. I designed the Befit Crew affiliate programme with personal codes and tiered commissions. I also stop things: when break-even ROAS, net of marketplace commissions, showed Google could not clear the bar, I moved that budget to Meta, where an Advantage+ retargeting campaign returned 3.7x in its first week.

I build it myself. My team is one designer and one social media executive, so I built a Claude-based system that runs our campaign planning, content and KPI reporting with about 40% less manual work, and our affiliate landing page with AI agents. On conversion, web orders grew 86% after I added reviews, rebuilt bundles from basket analysis and set up a replenishment flow. I have worked the supply side of two marketplaces: I onboarded 30+ sellers in two months at Alibaba's Miravia and co-managed XL restaurant accounts at Glovo. I have not run B2B SaaS demand generation, and I will not pretend I have. What I bring is the habit of setting the bar before the test and writing down why something stopped.

Hiring is a two-sided problem I would like to work on, and right now I know your candidate side first-hand. I have attached a one-page log of the experiments behind these numbers. I am based in Dubai and would be glad to talk.

Best regards,

Paula De Francisco Pérez

+971 50 386 3656 | paulich98@hotmail.com