Dear Hiring Manager,

I'm writing about your Franchise Coordinator role. What draws me is that The Body Shop's Dubai hub sits exactly where I like to work — the point that connects international markets and keeps a global partner network supported day to day — for a brand that has spent 50 years proving business can be a force for good. I coordinate multi-market partners, data and stakeholders for a living, I'm already based in Dubai, and I'm immediately available.

The core of this role maps directly onto my track. As Brand & Marketing Manager at DoFreeze I act as the link between a distributor and partner network across 50+ countries (GCC, MENA, Asia, Europe, USA, Africa) and internal commercial, supply and finance teams — keeping listings, pricing and reporting accurate so each market gets what it needs to run. Before that, at Miravia (Alibaba Group) I was the single point of contact for 42 key-account partners across beauty, fragrances and fashion, growing GMV +30% QoQ while owning assortment, data quality and performance reporting. Maintaining high-quality data is second nature: I built performance reports at Mondelez and Miravia, work in Power BI and SAP, and I'm an expert-level Excel user — the three tools your brief calls out.

Two things worth being straight about. First, my partner coordination has been with distributor and key-account partners rather than a formal franchisor-franchisee network — a close, honest analog, and I'd pick up the franchise specifics quickly given how similar the coordination, data and stakeholder work is. Second, I currently sit at manager level, so I'd bring that rigour and ownership to a coordination remit rather than needing to grow into it. What I add on top: a genuine beauty, FMCG and fashion-retail background (including Inditex retail training at Massimo Dutti), hands-on UAE market experience, and bilingual Spanish/English — useful across an international franchise footprint.

I'd love to help The Body Shop's Dubai hub connect markets, support partners and keep franchise operations running cleanly — with the organised, detail-first, data-accurate approach the role asks for. I'm based in Dubai and available to start immediately, and I'd welcome a conversation about how I'd support your international markets from day one. Thank you for your consideration.

Best regards,

Paula De Francisco Pérez
