Dear Hiring Manager,

Revolut is building a brand that earns attention and drives results at the scale of 75 million customers — and the Marketing Manager (Brand) role, leading brand and growth in the UAE, is exactly the kind of build I want to be part of. I am a B2C brand and growth marketer who came up inside hyper-growth global tech (Alibaba's Miravia and Glovo), and I now lead Brand & Marketing from Dubai, running go-to-market launches, full-funnel campaigns and data-driven content in-market every day. Bringing your global brand to life for a UAE audience — and operationalising it so regional teams can scale it — is the work I do best.

The 'what you'll be doing' list maps almost line for line onto my day job. At DoFreeze I lead go-to-market product launches end-to-end — audience strategy, messaging and communication plans across six NPDs — and design full-funnel campaign calendars that move people from acquisition to retention through paid media, influencer/UGC, social, CRM/EDM and e-commerce. I turn customer behaviour and product features into data-driven stories and content that convert, and I bring genuine analytical rigour: I run paid-media experiments and A/B tests on Meta and Google, then distil ROI, ROAS, conversion and retention data into actionable insights that steer the strategy. Before Dubai, I did this inside two hyper-growth global tech companies — at Alibaba's Miravia I grew 42 B2C accounts +30% GMV QoQ and built the 'Beauty Club' and 'Hot on Social' content programmes; at Glovo I ran complex, cross-functional campaigns on a quick-commerce super-app.

Two things make me a differentiated fit. First, your JD explicitly wants someone to 'scale creative marketing globally by operationalising resources, such as playbooks for regional teams' — that is precisely what I built: an AI-powered marketing-automation system (Claude / generative AI) that turned planning, content and reporting into repeatable playbooks running across 50+ markets, which is exactly how you turn one strong idea into engagement at Revolut's scale. Second, I am already executing growth in the UAE, so I know the market, the channels and the local nuance first-hand. I'll be candid about one gap: my sector background is e-commerce, consumer tech and FMCG rather than fintech — though I have worked inside consumer super-apps (Glovo, Careem, Talabat) and own Shopify checkout and payment flows, so app-based, payment-adjacent products are familiar terrain. I ramp fast, I'm obsessive about the competitive landscape, and I'd get up to speed on fintech quickly.

I would love to bring this blend of hyper-growth-tech pedigree, hands-on UAE growth execution and AI-powered ways of scaling creative to Revolut's Growth team, and to help make every move the brand makes in the UAE resonate and perform. I am already based in Dubai and available immediately, and I'd welcome the chance to talk through how I'd approach brand and growth for Revolut in-market. Thank you for your consideration — I look forward to hearing from you.

Best regards,

Paula De Francisco Pérez
