Dear Hiring Manager,

Building brand equity across a global travel-retail portfolio — activating new launches and Limited Edition Packaging across many markets at once, from activation calendar to POSM to ROI — is exactly the kind of work I do today, so JTI's Consumer Activation Manager role in Global Travel Retail immediately drew me in. I currently lead brand and activation for an FMCG portfolio across 50+ markets from Dubai, owning the activation calendar, NPD and limited-edition launches, A&P budgets and trade & shopper programmes end-to-end.

The core of the role maps directly onto what I deliver. At DoFreeze I develop and implement brand activation plans across all product categories — translating brand guidelines into launches, line extensions and seasonal executions — and I keep a clear activation calendar with regular status updates across GCC, MENA, Asia, Europe, the USA and Africa. I lead six NPD launches end-to-end (brief, packaging, pricing, go-to-market) with the merchandising and POSM to build equity at the point of purchase; I develop and manage A&P budgets, protecting investment efficiency and ROI through location-based prioritisation with clear annual and quarterly plans; and I monitor KPIs and campaign efficiency working cross-functionally with sales, finance and supply. Brand communication (ATL/BTL), trade segmentation, merchandising and key account management are day-to-day tools for me, and I work in SAP and MS Office.

Two things make me a natural fit for this specific brief. First, my category depth is in beauty and fragrances — the heart of travel retail: at Alibaba's Miravia I managed 42 accounts including leading fragrance houses (Arabian Oud, Lattafa, Swiss Arabian, Ajmal), growing them +30% GMV quarter-on-quarter. Second, this role liaises closely with the Americas travel-retail teams, and as a native Spanish speaker I can work naturally across LATAM markets. I'll be candid on one point: my activation experience has been in domestic and e-commerce / modern-trade channels rather than travel retail itself — but the discipline is identical, and I would bring it to GTR from day one, already based in Dubai.

I'd welcome the chance to discuss how my activation, budget and category experience would translate into JTI's Global Travel Retail team, and I'm ready to move quickly. Thank you for considering my application — I look forward to hearing from you.

Best regards,

Paula De Francisco Pérez
