Dear Hiring Manager,

Owning experiential campaigns end-to-end — from brief through to on-site execution — for some of the world's most recognised brands is exactly the kind of work I find most energising, so your Senior Account Manager role immediately caught my attention. I'm applying with a clear and honest picture of what I bring: several years managing key client relationships and delivering brand activations, launches and live brand experiences, most recently across 50+ markets from Dubai.

Client servicing and account growth are the core of what I do. At Alibaba's Miravia I managed and grew a portfolio of 42 key accounts to +30% GMV quarter-on-quarter, and at Glovo I held the account-management seat for strategic clients (KFC, Taco Bell, Sushi Shop), delivering bespoke marketing activations and leading cross-functional teams — marketing, operations, logistics — to execute campaigns seamlessly and on time. Today at DoFreeze I run brand activations and go-to-market end-to-end: translating briefs into creative concepts, owning A&P budgets, coordinating suppliers and production partners, and managing 25–50 creators per campaign plus product sampling and seeding — the experiential and shopper layer that brings a brand to life on the ground.

Let me be transparent: my experience has been brand- and client-side rather than inside a pure experiential agency, so I'd be stepping into the agency seat from the client's chair. I see that as a genuine strength — I know exactly what brands expect from an agency partner, I'm commercially minded about budgets and project finances, and I stay calm running many projects at once. I'm already based in Dubai with UAE market experience, I've built client-ready pitch decks and presentations to win and grow business, and I've mentored junior colleagues while building programmes from zero.

I'd welcome the chance to discuss how my account-management and activation experience would translate into your team, and I'm ready to move quickly. Thank you for considering my application — I look forward to hearing from you.

Best regards,

Paula De Francisco Pérez
