Dear Hiring Manager,

I'm excited to apply for the Creative Marketing Manager (Employer Brand) role at Revolut. Building bold, end-to-end campaigns and authentic storytelling is what energises me — I lead brand campaigns from concept to delivery today, and I've built brand and community programmes from scratch in fast-growth environments.

While my campaigns have driven product brands, the craft is the same as employer branding: developing core messaging, creating engaging social content, running events and activations, and translating audience insight into campaigns that land. I built a creator/community programme from zero (25–50 creators per campaign) and led standout brand projects like Beauty Club and Hot on Social at Alibaba's Miravia.

I thrive in hyper-growth, KPI-driven settings, partner comfortably with senior stakeholders, and push boundaries with new tools — including a generative-AI content workflow I built to move faster. I'm fluent in English (Spanish native), Dubai-based with a residence visa, and genuinely drawn to Revolut's culture and mission to attract the brightest minds.

I'd love to discuss how my creative and campaign experience can strengthen Revolut's employer brand in the region and globally. I'm available this week for a conversation — thank you for considering my application.

Best regards,

Paula De Francisco Pérez
